

In Sadness and Bitterness and a Weeping Heart...

In sadness and bitterness I understand your pain.
Sometimes you are locked up like a ball and a chain.
I understand the walls that surround.
You cut and you bleed and you do so without sound.
So many things I wish I could say.
It is the devils fault and he will pay one day.
I know you are lost and hurting pain without end.
But I tell you where comfort lies Jesus is your friend.
I know about your struggles in dreams I seen the darkest side of hell.
Spent nearly a decade in prison, in an evil prison cell.
Where dreams were wicked nightmares, that woke me up at night.
Often I could not go back to sleep but waited for dawn's light.
So often in challenges cellmates attacked fast.
But angels held back their full hatred and wicked evil attacks.
I remained silent as a lamb before its death.
Wondering each day how it would end, and would it be the last breath.
If you are hurting know I live in my own pain.
I get a bi-monthly shot and four pills just to keep my mind sane.
If you think your life has had a major train derailment.
I have been there too where enemies took my all, and to their pleasure spent.
Life is not a joyride, nor is not always fun.
I write you this to help you to pick up the pieces and overcome.

Just wanted to let you know I have suffered too but through Jesus I am picking up the pieces.

Amen Written by: Dale Lee Gordon on October 13th 2013 www.bible-heaven.com